AMERICAN NEWS.

NEW-YORK, July 16.

SATURDAY last a proclamation was iſſued here by his excellency the governor, ſtrictly forbidding any ſpirituous liquors to be carried or ſold at the caſtles, or in the countries of any of the five upper nations of Indians, as alſo to the Suſquehanna Indians, as it will be puniſhed with the utmoſt rigor of the law; and all his majeſty's officers are ſtrictly enjoined to be active and vigilant in the detection thereof. Which proclamation was iſſued on the earneſt requeſt of thoſe Indians, to prevent the fatal conſequences that often follow that pernicious practice.

New-York, July 30. We learn by the Captains Davis and Waynman, who arrived here laſt Tueſday in 31 days from the Bay of Honduras, that the Spaniſh privateer (or rather pirate) brigt. taken and brought in there ſome time ago, by Capt. Sergeant of Rhode-Iſland, was, with the conſent of the captors, as well as the Bayman, ſet on fire, and burnt. We cannot hear of any hoſtilities committed on our people in thoſe parts, ſince the brigt. above mentioned has been taken; but that they were in daily expectation of another viſit from them.

Boſton, July 30. A few days ago, Meſſrs. Benjamin Mitchel, and Lazarus Noble, arrived here from Canada, and give the following account, viz.

"On the 13th of June laſt paſt, I Benjamin Mitchel, and on the 15th I Lazarus Noble, ſet out from Boſton for Quebeck, in order to redeem our children that were captivated by the Indians, and were (as we were informed) at Canada. After our arrival at Crown-Point (where we were very kindly entertained) the commandant ordered us a guard of 6 men to convey us to Montreal, where we arrived in a few days, waited on the governor, and told him our errand, who received us kindly, bid us go to our lodgings, make ourſelves eaſy, and make the beſt diſpatch in queſt of our children, for all which we thanked him, and returned to our lodgings accordingly.

But inſtead of this, the governor, at ſix o'clock the next morning, ſent the town major to our lodgings, with the following meſſage, "That the governor "had ſent him to order us to depart the town, and "return to New-England, or that we ſhould be im-"mediately impriſoned." Upon this we went directly to the governor's houſe, to know the reaſon of this treatment, but were met at the foot of the ſtairs by another officer, with orders to us to go immediately to our Battoe, and return home, or we ſhould be impriſoned immediately. Thus finding our attempts to obtain our children would be in vain, we ſet out homewards, without ſo much as a letter to the lieutenant governor of this province, tho' we carried and delivered one to the govetnor of Montreal, as well as a paſsport from him. To the truth of which we are ready to make ſolemn oath, as it was delivered to us by our interpreter, Captain Anthony Van Schaick.

Benjamin Mitchel.
Boſton, 28th of July, 1753. Lazarus Noble."

New-York, Auguſt 20. Capt. Clark, from Philadelphia, informs us, that in his paſſage he was come up with and ſpoke to, by a ſloop full of men, with a Dutch jack at her maſt-head: She ſeemed very clean, neatly painted, and not long from port: The man on the round-houſe aſk'd capt. Clark in Engliſh, how New-York bore; but by the reſt of the crew having handkerchers round their heads, and narrow trowſers, he took them to be either French or Spaniards, and imagined that they were on no good deſign: They afterwards ſtood in for the land, inclining a little to the ſouthward.

LONDON, May 28.

WE can aſſure the public, that the report of a match being found burning at the door of the magazine of gun powder in the Tower, is entirely without foundation, and took its riſe from a piece of burnt paper being found near that place.

London, May 29. According to advices from Vienna, Sir Charles Hanbury Williams has made good uſe of the time he has lately ſpent there: This able miniſter has not only finiſh'd in a very ſhort time moſt of the negociations that had been ſet on foot by the earl of Hyndford, but has moreover ſettled with the Imperial court the payment of the ſums due to the king of Poland, as an indemnification for the expences which the ſtates of Saxony were put to by the Auſtrian troops after the concluſion of the treaty of Dreſden. Nay, they even ſay, that Sir Charles has made ſome overtures for accommodating matters between the Britiſh and Pruſſian courts; yet they apprehend that this wants confirmation.

By a veſſel arrived in the River there is advice, that a ſtore-ſhip of 900 tons was arrived at Louiſbourg from France, having on board 100 pieces of cannon, &c. that a mine was compleated between the weſt and ſouth gate, and a ſtrong fortification almoſt finiſhed on the Light-Houſe point.

Notwithſtanding ſome letters from Moſcow inſinuate that the Ruſſian court is very eaſy about the motions of the Turks and Tartars, we find by other advices from the ſame place, that thoſe movements occaſion much hurry and buſtle among the miniſtry: In the laſt week of April a courier arrived there from Conſtantinople, who brought letters from baron Penckler, Mr. Porter, and M. Hochepied, the Auſtrian, Britiſh and Dutch ambaſſadors at the Porte, to the miniſters of the ſaid powers at Moſcow; which letters they communicated to the great chancellor count Beſtucheff; and the ſaid courier was to be ſent back forthwith to M. Obreſkow, the Ruſſian reſident at Conſtantinople, with diſpatches whice he is to impart to the Grand Vizir. Couriers have been already diſpatched to Vienna and London on this occaſion.

London, May 31. Yeſterday was held a board of admiralty, when their lordſhips were pleaſed to put into commiſſion the Wager, and gave the command to Captain Weſt.

We hear that his grace the duke of Dorſet, will ſet out the latter end of Auguſt for Ireland, to open the parliament of that kingdom.

The men of war at Chatham are all victualled, and ordered round to Portſmouth.

Yeſterday the lords of the admiralty gave orders for for 16 additional ſhipwrights for Woolwich, 14 for Chatham, and 12 for Deptford yards, to commence on monday next.

According to private advices from Paris, we may expect to hear of hoſtilities being committed in ſome quarter or other before the ſummer is over, or, at leaſt that matters will ripen apace for a general rupture; the French court, as they ſay, having made a great progreſs in her negociation at Conſtantinople: Nevertheleſs, ſome people are of opinion, that the military diſpoſitions of the Turks may contribute to the preſervation of the public tranquility, by inducing certain powers to give over the purſuit of ſome points which they have very much at heart.

London, June 7. Yeſterday orders were given for a party of the horſe-grenadiers, and a detachment of the foot guards, to be on the parade in St. James's park this morning by four o'clock, to march from thence to the Tower, to guard the body of Dr. Cameron to the bar in the Minories, where he was delivered to the ſheriff, high-conſtables, &c. who conducted him to Tyburn on a ſledge, where he was executed according to his ſentence; and to morrow his head will be fixed on Temple Bar. He was well dreſſed, with a tye-wig and without a hat; in his way, ſeemed to take notice of the populace.

They write from Cadiz, that Armand Bill is made maſter-builder of the king of Spain's ſhips of war at that place; David Howell, maſter builder at the Havannah; and Joſeph Stephens, cauiker, at Cadiz. Theſe 3 men were all quartermen at Deptford yard, and eſteemed excellent draughtſmen and ſhipwrights, and lately diſcharged out of Deptford yard.

Laſt tueſday the lords of the admiralty gave orders for two ſhips of 20 guns, and the Peggy ſloop of war, to ſail immediately for Shetland, to protect the Britiſh fiſhery.

Paris, May 18. A pamphlet is juſt publiſhed, which makes a great noiſe, and is entitled, 'A tradition of facts, which ſerve to ſhew the ſyſtem of independency which the biſhops of France have in different ages oppoſed to the invariable principles of the king's ſovereign authority over all his ſubjects without diſtinction, and the neceſſity there is of letting the ſecular judges act againſt their enterprizes, in order to preſerve the obſervation of the laws and the public tranquility.'

CHARLES-TOWN, Sept. 17.

Laſt Saturday Afternoon arrived here Capt. Butterfield from Jamaica, in 26 Days. He brings no News, but that three Men of War arrived from the Coaſt of Guiney the Day he ſail'd, which made up 7 Sail of King's Ships at Jamaica.

The ſame Evening came into the Road, Capt. Gardner, from Providence.

A Worthy merchant in wealth did ſo abound,
Left at his death juſt eighty thouſand pounds;
This for two charming daughters he deſign'd,
And that they thus divide it them enjoin'd.
" Fidelia, ſhe the greateſt ſhare ſhall take,
" Which being ſquar'd, the ſquare thereof ſhall make
" A number equal to fair Celia's, found,

SUPPLEMENT To THE South-Carolina Gazette.

September 17, 1753. [NUMB. 1005.]

RATISBON, May 13.

A the proteſt and memorials of the king of Pruſſia's miniſter, delivered upon the ſubject of Eaſt Friezland, have been found to be couched in too harſh terms, the miniſters of the Imperial commiſſion have ſent them back to him, with a declaration, that writings of this nature, which wounded the dignity of the emperor and the empire, could not be admitted by the imperial commiſſion, and much leſs preſented to the head of the empire.

Paris, May 14. M. Gilbert, head clerk to the grand chamber, not having receiv'd a lettre de cachet at the ſame time with the others, complained to the chancellor, of being ſeparated from thoſe on whom it was his duty to attend. The count d'Argenſon having wrote to M. de Champeron, ſub-dean, that the king, in conſideration of his bad ſtate of health, permitted him to remain at Paris, M. Champeron returned anſwer, that five times he had obeyed the king on ſuch occaſions, and would obey him yet a ſixth.

The baniſhment of the parliament cannot be conſidered as a very bold ſtep in the miniſtry, ſince they they did not take it 'till they had no other to take; which the parliament foreſaw, and forced them to it, as is evident from the cloſe of their remonſtrance. What the conſequence will be is uncertain; but, in all human probability, men of their prudence and diſcernment, as well as probity and fortitude, would not have puſhed this meaſure ſo far, if they had not eſteemed themſelves pretty ſecure in their judgment of the effects. For the preſent the politicians here talk much, declaim vehemently, but aſſert nothing; at leaſt nothing that is probable. The clergy, whoſe triumph this is, inſtead of enjoying it, look very cloudy and perplexed, and as if they were doubtful of maintaining the ground they have gained.

Paris, May 18. We hear that the parliament of Rouen, having received expreſs prohibitions from the king not to take cognizance of any denials of the ſacraments, reſolved to follow the example of that of Paris, and ſuſpend their ordinary functions.

It is reported, that the cardinal de Soubize has reſigned his commiſſion for eccleſiaſtical affairs, and retires next ſunday to his biſhopric of Straſbourg. Cardinal de la Rochefoucault has been ſent for to court, but we know not on what occaſion.

Paris A-la-main, June 1. A profound ſilence is ſtill obſerved with regard to the preſent affairs. Frequent councils are held at court; but nothing tranſpires. The public, however, form conjectures concerning what is tranſacted, which after ſome time grow in credit. Some poſitively aſſure us, that the king is examining into the ſource between the clergy and parliament; and that after receiving all the explanation he deſires, his majeſty will ſee that he has been deceived; that he will recal his parliament, and come to it to hold a bed of juſtice; that the conduct of that body will then be approved, and other great events take place.

Bruſſels, May 24. According to ſome letters from Paris, the princes of the blood, the dukes and peers of France, and the principal officers of the crown, were to aſſemble at laſt tueſday at Verſailles, in order to delibe ate on the preſent ſituation of the parliament, and draw up remonſtrances to the king in favour of that illuſtrious body. The public, depending on his majeſty's natural clemency, are very poſitive that the parliament will be recalled, and no body doubts that the grand chamber in particular will ſpeedily return to the metropolis. This opinion ſeems to be confirmed by the decline of the influence of the antient biſhop de Mirepoix, from whom, it is ſaid, the king has taken the liſt of benefices, and committed it to the care of cardinal de la Rochefoucault.

LONDON, May 26.

An Extract of a Letter from Briſtol, dated May 22.

"Yeſterday at noon, this city was alarmed with a mob of many hundred colliers, and other country people, headed by a captain and colours: They proceeded to the council-houſe, and preſented a petition to the mayor and corporation, repreſenting the ſtraits themſelves and families were in by the dearneſs of bread, &c. and praying for redreſs of their grievances. They were mildly received, and promiſed relief as ſoon as poſſible, to the ſatisfaction of the major part of them: But many of them being diſſatisfied, the proclamation of peace was read, and they immediately went to the Kay, and forcibly boarded a veſſel, on board of which they found a conſiderable quantity of corn for exportation, they began plundering her: They had not proceeded long in their enterprize, e'er a poſſe of conſtables and other officers, appeared to the relief of the veſſel. The rioters probably not expecting reſiſtance, ſeeing there were no ſoldiers in town, were unarmed, and the ſtaves beginning to move pretty briſkly, were glad to ſhift their quarters, ſome jumping overboard into the mud, divers truſting to a light pair of heels, and others making what reſiſtance they were able, afforded pleaſant diverſion to the ſpectators.

"The conſtables having delivered the veſſel, came off victorious with divers priſoners, but thoſe who had eſcaped, having informed another gang of this occurrence, immediately advanced to their aſſiſtance, and reſcued them from the conſtables. Being enraged with the oppoſition they had received, immediately return'd to the council houſe, and with ſtones and brickbats broke moſt of the windows, ſeveral perſons that were therein being hurt and wounded; declaring at the ſame time, they would go arm themſelves, and repeat the viſit. At length the conſtables renewed their attack, and the mob being unarm'd directly took to their heels; divers of them being taken, were brought before the magiſtrates, who, after gentle reproofs, and wholeſome advice, diſcharged them all, on promiſe of their good behavior for the future. Many of the mob had their heads broke, and their captain his arm; but it has happily ended hitherto without further damage."

London,

London, May 29. We learn from Briſtol, that almoſt an entire ſtop was put to the trade of that city for the whole laſt week, occaſioned by the riſing of the colliers; of whoſe farther proceedings the following is the beſt account that could be given during ſuch confuſion, viz.

Immediately after their diſperſion on monday, neceſſary precautions were taken by the magiſtrates, leſt they ſhould fulfil their promiſes of returning arm'd; and a great many citizens voluntarily enter'd themſelves to ſtand by the city, and took the uſual oaths of fidelity. Theſe remain'd under arms all that night, and continued ſo till Thurſday, in which time nothing material happened. Thurſday morning, there was a freſh alarm of their approach to the city. About noon a great mob, conſiſting of colliers, country people, weavers, &c. aſſembled at Lawford's gate; the conſtables and the reſt of the city guard advancing to them, the mob began to pelt them with ſtones; and committing other outrages, a ſkirmiſh happened, in which ſeveral of the former were wounded and taken priſoners; but were afterwards admitted to bail. At nine the ſame evening the gates were all ſhut, and at ten the guards patroled the city; and finding all things quiet, finiſhed the proceedings of this day. Friday morning a troop of the regiment of Scotch Greys arrived; ſoon after which, a freſh alarm being given of the rioters coming, the drum beat to arms, the city-guard put themſelves under arms ready to receive them, the city gates were ſhut, and the drawbridge pulled up, to prevent their entrance: However the rioters got round to Bridewell gate, determined to releaſe a priſoner taken on monday; but by the time they had broke it open, the guard came up, and firing a few pieces among them, put them into ſuch confuſion, that they ran divers ways, in order to make their eſcape, which occaſioned ſeveral ſkirmiſhes in different parts of the city, wherein 4 were killed on the ſpot, and above 30 taken, ſome of which were dangerouſly wounded; theſe were immediately carried to Guildhall, and their wounds being dreſſed, after examination, 30 of them were committed to Newgate. Several of the city guard were dangerouſly wounded, and divers were ſtill miſſing when the letters came away, who were carried off by the rioters into Kingſwood, which gives their friends great concern, as they know not what may befal them.

Briſtol, June 2. Since our laſt this city has enjoyed peace and quietneſs. Tueſday a petition being ſent to the mayor, in behalf of all the wounded colliers, &c. praying for ſome ſurgeons to be ſent to dreſs their wounds, the mayor was pleaſed to grant them their requeſt; and many well-diſpoſed citizens, inſtead of reſenting the loſſes they have ſuſtained on their account, by a whole week's obſtruction to trade, commiſerating their folly and needy condition, have made a collection, and ſent them a great deal of proviſion for themſelves and families. There are upwards of 50 of them wounded, and ſome of them likely to loſe their limbs. They have only one young man a priſoner, whom they yet detain; but it is hoped the charitable benevolence of the city will induce them to give him up unhurt

AMERICA.

Boſton, Auguſt 16. On tueſday laſt, in the afternoon, his excellency our governor arrived from England, in his majeſty's ſhip Portmahon, commanded by capt. Montague, which came to anchor over Spectacle Iſland: About 5 o'clock his excellency went in the Portmahon's barge to Caſtle-William, being ſaluted at his going off by the cannon of the ſhip, and upon his arrival at the caſtle, by 17 of the cannon of that fortreſs. About 6 he was at the caſtle congratulated on his ſafe arrival, by ſeveral of his majeſty's council, the committee of the general court who was appointed to receive him, and a number of other principal gentlemen, who went down to wait his landing. The day following his excellency remained at the caſtle; and on thurſday he came up in the caſtle barge, being attended by the committee and ſeveral officers and gentlemen in other barges, and landed at the end of the Long-Wharf between 12 and 1 o'clock, where he was met by as many of his majeſty's council, and members of the houſe of repreſentatives as could have notice of his arrival, with a great number of other gentlemen, and col. Pollard's company of cadets, who eſcorted him up to the court-houſe. On this occaſion his excellency's troop of guards, and the troops of horſe from the country, with the regiments of militia of this town, were drawn up in two lines in King ſtreet, thro' which his excellency and the gentlemen that attended him paſſed to the court-houſe, and his excellency having ſtay'd ſome time in the council-chamber, and received the compliments of the clergy and other gentlemen not in the proceſſion, and being ſaluted by a diſcharge of the ſmall arms from the troops and regiment, was attended in like form to Faneuil-hall, where an elegant dinner was prepared by the committee appointed by the general court at their laſt ſeſſion, to make proviſion for his excellency's honorable reception: After dinner, his excellency was conducted to the Province houſe, by the committee, gentlemen and military officers, preceded by the company of cadets, who ſa'uted him there with a diſcharge of their fire arms. When his excellency put off from the caſtle, he was ſaluted by the cannon, and during his paſſage to town, the guns on the batteries here and at Charles-Town fired, as did thoſe on board the ſhips in the harbor. In the evening there was a large bonfire on Fort-hill, and great variety of fireworks played off: And it was obſerv'd, that there was the greateſt concourſe of people on the Long Wharf, and in the ſtreets thro' which he paſs'd, that ever was ſeen there at one time, and a general ſatisfaction and joy appeared at his excellency's return to his government. On the day following, the epiſcopal clergy of this town waited upon his excellency in a body, in the forenoon, to congratulate him upon his return, as did the clergy of the congregational churches in the afternoon.
